Corporal punishment leads to jail term

By RAYMOND E. YANCEY

YOUNGSTOWN--Misbehaving in school lead to a whipping of the 10 year old son of Ms. Brenda Hamlett, 27, 2536 Market Street, by his grandmother, Ophelia Hamlett, 55, of 52 W. Warren Avenue with an electrical extension cord last March 2.

Brenda Hamlett, informed about the 10 year olds problem in school, administered a second whipping with an extension cord when she came home.

Both mother and grandmother pleaded no contest in charges of child endangerment in April.

Based on pre-sentence reports of an investigation by Juvenile Officer John Clinkscale and the Mahoning County Children's Services Board Judge Louis K. Levy sentenced both women to a six months term in the County Jail.

The judge suspended five months of the jail term. Both women will serve one month in jail and will serve three years probation under terms set by the Children's Services Board. The grandson has been placed in a foster home.

Man files $1.5 million suit

CINCINNATI--A U.S. Army master sergeant, who was allegedly brutally beaten by three Cincinnati police officers in an incident one year ago, has filed a $1.5 million lawsuit against the City of Cincinnati and the officers who were involved.

Master sergeant Alex F. Boykin, a 23-year Army officer, was arrested May 19, 1986, and charged with two counts of assault on police officers, obstructing police officers, resisting arrest, and disorderly conduct.

Boykin, represented by attorney Leslie I. Gaines, eventually was found not guilty on all counts by a Hamilton County jury during his trial.

During the trial, Gaines told the jury that Boykins, a professor of military science at Xavier University and a recruitment officer for the university's ROTC program, was delivering some information to a possible recruit when the incident occurred. Sergeant Boykin and the recruit, a woman, decided to discuss the material over a sandwich at a nearby restaurant. The incident occurred in the 2600 block of Vine Street in Corryville.

When they drove up to the restaurant, Boykin let the potential recruit out of his veh-

Woman in desperate need of transplant

CLEVELAND -- For a while, it appeared time was on the side of Donna M. Blair, 33, of Shaker Heights, Ohio. Doctors had given her six months to live -- 12 months ago.

She hoped that, with the added time, she would be able to raise over $200,000 that is needed in order for her to receive a heart and lung transplant. So far, she has managed to raise about $33,000.

Time (precious time) however, has become as much a foe as the pulmonary hypertension, a degenerate lung disease that she suffers from.

Benefit to aid Ridgway center

"Reaching out for Ridgway" will be the theme of a benefit concert for Ridgway on Sunday, May 24th in the Battelle Memorial Auditorium at 5 P.M. This year's concert will climax the fundraising events held for the past two years to raise funds to purchase a van equipped with a wheel-chair lift and wheel-chair locks. With this van, Ridgway can transport the residents to more out-of-the center activities and thus enrich the lives of the elderly housed at Ridgway.

The Isabelle Ridgway Home for the Aged was founded in 1912 by a quiet, unassuming, frail little lady, who conceived the idea of establishing a home for the aged, homeless residents of the community. Ridgway opened its first Home at 157 N. 21st St. with three aged ladies as residents. From there, the Home moved to 1240 E. Long St. and then to 71 winner Ave. where some 40 chronically ill and aged patients were house.

The Ridgway Home then moved into another new facility which houses 100 residents and provides a modern nursing and medical facility designed with the elderly in mind. At the same time, the home has a residential character for it is an environment for living. The home is now known as the Isabelle Ridgway Nursing Center and is located at 1520 Hawthorne Avenue, adjacent to the St. Anthony Hospital Complex.

GOSPEL STARS UNITE...Nationally reknown Gospel Music Host Denver Wilborn and Hortense Crawford, the reigning queen of gospel music, were united in marriage, last Saturday, at the Christian Fellowship Center, in Cleveland. Pastor Bill McKinney officiated at the beautiful, moving ceremony, which included a ceremonial washing of hands by the minister. The bride's sterling vocal rendition of the Lord's Prayer, moved many of the 500 witnesses to the ceremony to tears. Pastor McKinney was assisted by Rev. Earl Preston, of the Morning Star Baptist Church; Dr. W. Charles Bonds, of the Old Landmark Church of Deliverance; and Pastor James Moon, of the Progressive Memorial Baptist Church. Herb Wilborn Jr. played a flute solo and Leonard Collins sang. The wedding music was performed by Pianist Barbara Collier and Organist David Thomas. A reception was held on a farm on Dunham Road, bordering the Cuyahoga Valley National Recreation Area. An African National Dance troupe performed to celebrate the couple's marriage.

Advisory committee taps Marable as choice for OSU chairmanship

COLUMBUS--After more than two years of often-acrimonious debate about the future of the Department of Black Studies at the Ohio State University, a search committee has begun the task of establishing new leadership in the department, with the recommendation of a nationally-known educator and writer to head the department.

Dr. Manning Marable, a professor at Purdue University in Lafayette, Ind., was the unanimous choice of the Black Studies Advisory Board to chair the department. Marable also writes a weekly column, "Across the Color Line," which has also appeared in the Call and Post.

The Black Studies Department at OSU has been under attack since 1984, when College of Humanities Dean G. Michael Riley attempted to oust then-chairman Dr. William E. Nelson from the post he had held since 1972. Nelson fought the ouster, and continued as chair until he decided to step down to accept a research professorship in 1986.

Mary Ann Williams, a professor in the Department of Black Studies, had been named the interim chair. She expressed no interest in assuming the chair full-time.

There had previously been deep division on the search committee, as supporters of Nelson had charged that, in earlier recommendations, individuals with the strongest Black studies background had not been adequately considered.

A release by the advisory board said that Marable had been recommended "based on the criteria of scholarship, research, service and leadership," noting not only his scholarly and journalistic efforts but

Woman charged in husband's death

By NATHAN PAIGE
Call and Post staff reporter

CLEVELAND—The wife of a man who fled the scene after shooting her husband in front of Councilwoman Fannie Lewis' home last Monday has been charged in his death.

A $50,000 bond has been set for Emma Wade on the charge of aggravated murder in the shooting death of her husband Frank Wade on May 11. According to Det. Robert Bolton, Cleveland Police Department spokesperson, Frank Wade was leaving Councilwoman Lewis' home, after visiting with her daughter, when an argument arose between Frank and Emma Wade.

The argument, which included accusations of Wade being involved with the Councilwoman's daughter, ended in bloodshed when she shot him in the chest with a snub-nosed revolver. Emma Wade then fled from the scene in an automobile, accompanied by another female.

Officials still have no clues as to how Mrs. Wade found out where her husband was.

At the time of the shooting, Councilwoman Lewis was at a City Council meeting. She was quoted in earlier reports as saying that she had no idea who Wade was and why he was at her house when reporters contacted her after the incident. She indicated later, however, that she was familiar with Wade and that they were previously on the same bowling league.

She also indicated that she was not aware that Wade and his wife had any domestic problems.

Emma Wade's case will be

Astronaut Guy Bluford to visit King Library

Col. Guion "Guy" S. Bluford, Jr., the first black astronaut to fly in space, will visit the Martin Luther King Jr. Library on May 23 to meet with youngsters and help promote the Summer Splash Reading Club for kids --a summer program for youngsters at all library locations.

A favorite of youngsters, Bluford will be in Columbus for the Minority Youth Achievement Awards presented by Region 4 of the National Technical Association at a dinner at 7 p.m., May 23, at the Columbus Plaza Hotel, 50 N. Third St. Bluford is scheduled to stop at the King Library, 1600 E. Long St., at 2:30 p.m. to briefly speak with kids and sign autographs.

The U.S. Air Force Colonel served as the mission specialist on two flights aboard the National Aeronautics & Space Administration shuttle Challenger.

The National Technical Association is an organization devoted to encourage youngsters to pursue interests in the technical and scientific fields. Members of local Region 4 recently conducted a project at the King Library instructing youngsters age 11 and up to construct their own digital clocks. Experts from AT&T, Battelle Memorial Institute and other area firms and agencies volunteer their assistance for workshops such as this and various programs on computers, simulated rocket launches, among others to provide a hands-on interest to young children in science and techology.

Col. Bluford's message at the library and the awards dinner will be directed at youngsters to pursue technical and scientific fields of study.

The library's Summer Splash Reading club kicks off June 8 at all locations of the Public Library of Columbus & Franklin County. The program offers rewards for reading and various educational and entertaining programs related to books, including programs where kids experiment with water, sand and sun involving principals of science and technology.

Limited engagement of 'Hollywood Shuffle' opens at the Drexel

Who is Bobbie Taylor and why he is having so much trouble? Because he's trying to do the "Hollywood Shuffle!" What is the "shuffle?" It's the game a Black actor has to play to become successful in Hollywood. It's also the title of a new film by Robert Townsand, an hilarious look at how tough it is to make dreams come true in today's Hollywood.

"HOLLYWOOD SHUFFLE" produced, written, directed and starring Robert Townsend opens an exclusive limited engagement on Friday, May 22 at the Drexel Theatre, 2254 E. Main St. The new film has opened across the country to rave critical reviews and long box-office lines.

"If I don't believe in myself, how can I expect anyone else to." With that in mind, Robert Townsend set upon a plan to produce and direct his first feature film. The actor who starred as Corporal Ellis (the jeep driver) in "A Soldier's Story," was tired of the stereotypical, demeaning roles that Hollywood seems to reserve for upcoming Black actors. When numerous production companies turned him down to both direct and star in "HOLLYWOOD SHUFFLE," he decided to make the movie on his own. He pooled his money from his acting roles in "A Soldier's Story" and "American Flyers" and began making the film. Townsend surrounded himself with young, fresh talent, all of whom worked for nothing in order to help out their friend. The movie was shot for a mere $100,000 on a hit-and-run basis. It didn't take long for the money to run out, so Townsend financed the rest of the film with cash advances on credit cards.

But the budget is not the point, "HOLLYWOOD SHUFFLE" is one of the funniest films of the year. The movies best sketches include a wildly funny TV show called "There's a Bat in My House" (Can a black bat from Detroit find happiness with a white middle-class family?) The show stars a Black actor as Batty Boy. Also, "Sneakin' in the Movies," is an inspired parody of movie-review TV shows. Tyrone and Speed (Jim Woodward and Townsend, respectively) dissect movies like "Attack of the Street Pips" with ample clips.

"HOLLYWOOD SHUFFLE" stars Robert Townsend, Ann-Marie Johnson, Starletta DuPois, and Craigus R. Johnson. The Drexel Theatre will offer special discount rates for groups and organizations. Contact the Drexel Theatre business office at 231-1050.

'Golden Boy' to conclude Center Stage season at vets

"Golden Boy" is the story of Joe Wellington, a boxer who wants to rise from his ghetto surroundings to fame and fortune. On his way to the top, he encounters love and pain, both physical and emotional.

The strength of the production lies in the balance of the performers talents. The emotional depth the actors display is matched by the dancers' ability to create moods of intensity or frivolity with deft movements.

The cast is led by Jeff Wright and Mark Pinkston who alternate in the role of Joe Wellington. Sam Spradlin is cast as Tom Moody, Joe's manager. Cynthia Ohanian and Alice Mooney alternate in the role of Lorna Moon, the manager's mistress and Joe's romantic interest.

"Golden Boy," premieres, May 30th, 8:00 p.m. at Veterans Memorial Auditorium. For ticket information, call 460-3579.

CENTRAL STATE UNIVERSITY

"Tawawa House," an original musical drama based on the history of the Wilberforce community, will premiere May 28, 29, and 30 in the Paul Roberson Cultural and Performing Arts Center on the Central State University campus. The cast of 31 will be headed by three professional singers and actors and includes a mixed chorus, percussion ensemble and chamber orchestra. Central State and Wilberforce Universities are joined by the National Afro-American Museum and Cultural Center in sponsoring the premiere of "Tawawa House." For additional information, call 513/376-6174.

FRANKIE J'S

The grand opening of Frankie J's Kon Tiki Cafe & Patio is scheduled for the weekend of May 22 through 24. All new carpet and furniture, as well as new gas grills have been installed. To enhance the cafe's atmosphere, there is a garden and rock fountain. The Kon Tiki Cafe kicks off its "Jazz Under the Stars" Series with Don Shales on Friday, The Tom Carroll Quartet on Saturday, and the Bobby Floyd Ensemble on Sunday of the Memorial Day weekend. For following the patio grand opening, live jazz will be featured (rain or shine) every Friday and Saturday through September 7th.

DIGITAL DUKE

The brainchild of Dave Grusin and Larry Rosen, "Digital Duke" is a unique record album that features Duke Ellington classics, recorded for the first time through the advent of state-of-the-art, 32-track digital recording. Under the direction of Mercer Ellington, both past and present members of the Duke's orchestra came together to make the special recording. For all involved with the project, the guiding directive was to present the legendary Ellington repertoire faithfully while allowing creative and interpretive freedom to the soloists. By bringing together musicians from the earlier days, such as Clark Terry and Louise Bellson with jazz stars of today like Marsalis and Daniels, the intent is to bridge the generation gap among listeners. In this way, it ensures that Ellington's music will not become a static, cobwebbed relic, but will remain a vibrant influence on the present and future. "Digital Duke" will be released the week of May 24th.

Some school questions

A recent forum held by the 29th District Citizens' Caucus introduced many of the school board candidates to the Black community. What the forum didn't do, however, was give the school board members the opportunity to answer some very critical questions which must be answered if the position of Black children in the schools is to be enhanced.

One is, "what is the reason for this reorganization plan?" Many parents expressed a deeply-held concern about the effect of increasing the number of alternative schools in the system.

From the school board's standpoint, alternative schools are a means to introduce choice into the schools to help retain and acquire more middle-class parents, in the competition between the Columbus Public Schools and the suburban school districts.

However, what does this type of policy -- which was not stated at the forum, but has been stated as a goal in other meetings -- do for the Black, and poor students in a district increasingly Blacker and poorer?

A second question is: "why has the board been so gung-ho for tax abatements?" Within the past six months, the school board has abated almost $40 million in future taxes on businesses -- at a time when this and other school districts are crying to legislators asking for increased state dollars for education.

In addition, it appears that these tax abatements -- to Ross Laboratories and The Limited -- were given away without any commitments on things like affirmative action in hiring or use of minority businesses to supply these companies.

Although the board claims to have gotten some commitments, it is clear that, whatever the commitments they have received, they are not in writing. What will the city's Black and poor residents -- who do pay property taxes -- have to show for the multi-millions in abatements given to highly-profitable companies? The voters ought to know.

But one man asked the question that summed up all the questions: "what are you going to do to meet the needs of Black children?" Black children are now more than 45 percent of the school district. Complaints arose from parents, from youth workers -- and from former teachers -- that Black children are being tracked into vocational programs, rather than encouraged to go to college; Black children are being disproportionately disciplined in the schools; too many children, particularly too many Black children, are dropping out of school, and too many of those who are graduating are not going to college.

What will the school board do to address these critical issues?

These are questions because we don't now have answers. They are questions that a committed, aggressive group of parents and concerned citizens asked a panel of would-be, and current, board members seeking election. They are the questions that current board members are going to have to address within the next five months, because the Black community is watching.

These are the questions that will shape our children's lives. And, we are looking to find board members who will be able to give them serious, detailed, and committed answers.

Reconsider reorganization plan

It's a sad situation when words of wisdom fall on deaf ears. The Columbus School Board is guilty of ignoring some sound advice from School Board Member Bill Moss.

Since James Hyre, superintendent of Columbus Public Schools, announced his resignation last month, School Board member Bill Moss has been advocating that the board postpone plans to reorganize the school system.

Moss wisely contends that the departure of Hyre, the uncertainty surrounding the composition of the school board following the General Election in November (all but one board seat is vulnerable), and the lack of an audit to ascertain the fiscal impact on the school system creates too much ambiguity to proceed with the complex reorganization plan during the upcoming school year.

Although Moss' opponents say "the administrative staff is strong enough and knowledgeable enough to make the plan work in spite of Hyre's departure," they fail to adequately address the other questions that could make the plan a resounding failure.

A child's education is too important to risk on this game of chance.

Briefly, the reorganization plan, that takes effect during the upcoming school year, creates more alternative schools and more educational options in the designing of a student's curriculum.

Its implementation will demand sweeping changes in the management of personnel, physical and fiscal resources.

If Columbus had a crumbling school system that was in need of drastic overhaul, we might be more inclined to throw caution to the wind and say "move forward." However, Columbus Public Schools is one of the top big city schools in the nation; so, as Moss says, "What's the rush?"

The Call and Post recommends that the School Board reconsider Moss' resolution calling for a postponement of the reorganization plan.

The board should wait to see what life is like after Hyre, wait to see what changes occur after Election Day, and conduct an independent audit to see if reorganizing is the most prudent way to educate our children and spend taxpayer dollars.

Words hit as hard as a fist.

"You're pathetic. You can't do anything right!"
"You disgust me. Just shut up!"
"Hey stupid! Don't you know how to listen."
"Get outta here! I'm sick of looking at your face."
"You're more trouble than you're worth."
"Why don't you go and find some other place to live!"
"I wish you were never born!"

Children believe what their parents tell them. Next time, stop and listen to what you're saying. You might not believe your ears.

Take time out. Don't take it out on your kid.

Another look at 'chaos' in schools

I was truly appalled by the remarks of Mr. Rich Fahey at the May 5, Columbus Board of Education meeting. During the discussion on school reorganization, Board member Fahey stated that Board member Bill Moss was trying to cause chaos in the schools by his effort against reorganization and his past efforts against other proposals.

Mr. Fahey is more than welcome to his own opinion on different issues, but to claim that anyone who voices a different opinion is instigating discord and chaos is an out and out fallacious lie and is an attack upon the principles this nation was founded upon.

It is very dangerous that in Mr. Fahey we have a Board member who feels that his views are absolute law, and that everyone else and every other view is non-important, chaotic, and should be ignored.

America was founded on the principle of freedom. Mr. Moss is free to express his beliefs, and he should also be free from any and all unbased and erroneous attempts at character assassination, such as Mr. Fahey's.

I am very curious as to how the proposal Mr. Moss offered, which was to basically keep the schools as they are, could be construed as chaos causing? If this would bring about chaos, does that not mean that the schools are currently in a state of chaos.

Just think, nearly 90 percent of my classmates and myself graduated from my high school last year. A state of chaos? Hardly.

What is most appalling is the fact that Mr. Fahey seems to believe that having a different opinion is wrong. I believe that we know where our School Board stands when both sides of an issue are offered, instead of when just one view is presented.

I guess when Mr. Moss stands up for many of the citizens of Columbus by speaking out against tax abatement and against reorganization (which may very well turn out to be nothing more than a return to segregation), he is causing chaos--chaos to the plans that could make our school system a lily-white one, where the well-to-do whites are catered to, while the education of the Blacks and poor whites lags behind.

Also chaos to a system where the children are continually moved around to coincide with the latest "greatest" proposal, causing a disruption in the education process--which would certainly be more likely to cause "chaos" than the proposal by Mr. Moss.

It seems to me that Mr. Moss is trying to prevent the chaos that he foresees before it happens. Perhaps Mr. Fahey should consider the fact that over 50,000 people in Columbus have voted for Mr. Moss, and that over 40,000 people voted against last year's tax levy.

Hopefully, all these people will find out that their views would cause chaos--chaos to Mr. Fahey's election chances in November.

I want to personally thank you for your wonderful support of the Tri-C JazzFest 87. Thanks to your features, interviews and publicity, 15,000 people had a super, jazz-filled 10 days.

The final concert was a total sell-out and the Carmen McCrae concert attracted 2,500 people.

But more importantly, the educational opportunities are being taken advantage of by the public as they learn, thanks to you, that the Tri-C JazzFest means more than just pure entertainment.

On behalf of the college, I thank you for your continuing cooperation in spreading the word locally, statewide and nationally.

I look forward to many future and rewarding contacts.

Thank goodness

Blacks are caught between a rock and a hard place when they have to witness such operas as "Porgy and Bess."

Most Blacks don't like these demeaning types of entertainment but they can't afford to scream too loudly because these types of entertainment create jobs for Black actors and actresses.

These degrading form of entertainment are the perfect vehicle for the white establishment to stereotype the Blacks in the name of equlity. This degredation is also true in entertainments such as the "Color Purple," "That's My Mama," "Give Me a Break," "What's Happening," and many, many more.

We Blacks have to grin and bear it, as we watch the world get its education on what Blacks are like.

Thank goodness we have Jesse Jackson and the Black press.

Reaching out

I'm writing this letter to you in hopes of bridging a gap filled with misunderstanding, distrust and ill feelings. I am presently incarcerated for a period of three years at Marion Correctional Inst., in Marion, Ohio and during the period I've been here I have noticed unrest and depression among my fellow inmates as well as feeling the same myself.

The nucleus of this problem is due to the lack of communication with the outside world.

Feelings of this nature can sometimes prove catastrophic to someone upon his return to the outside because he feels no one cared while he was locked up, so no one cares while he is free.

It can stem from his feeling guilty about being locked up and feeling no one wants to care about him.

This low feeling of self esteem is truly self-defeating to a man who truly wants to regain a respectful place in society and the people who tend to treat him as he feels is truly to help to any type of recovery.

Please believe I'm not making excuses for any of us, just giving an explanation. In order to rectify a wrong you must first recognize it as being such. There is not one of us, jailed or free, who doesn't have a devious side.

As one of the wisest ever in man kind once stated "he who is without sin cast the first stone." There are a great number of men incarcerated who are intelligent, humane, compassionate, caring and loving. Men who only need know that someone cares and is willing to give them a chance.

We're only as far away as your pen and paper; there is truly another side to the inside.

I am asking for myself as well as anyone else who would ask for pen pals and new friendships. We realize that we did something wrong and we are paying for it.

I truly realize that Freedom is man's most precious possession, only when it is imperiled does man realize its worth.

But through it all we still care: Do you?

I will answer all who would care to write to me promptly and respectfully. I am 31 years of age 5 ft. in. tall, 160 lbs.

Sincerely Submitted

No increases

The Celeste Administration announced that it would not grant a contingent 2 percent increase in cash welfare benefits, saying the cost over the next two years would throw the 1987-1989 state budget out of balance.

This decision was made even though the welfare fund had not been expended, but was rather an administrative decision to use the funds to help balance the state budget. Such rationale is totally unacceptable, and represents a lack of leadership and compassion for Ohio's most vulnerable citizens.

The decision further illustrates the Celeste administration has elected to discriminate against the poor, especially those who are most vulnerable. This includes children, and single parent families.

The state's continued failure to provide adequate standards for assistance is demoralizing and places an unfair burden on an already hard pressed community of poor people, often forcing them into activities that may not be legal in their efforts to survive. Such as seeking out employment for cash only and then not reporting it.

The Interchurch Council of Greater Cleveland has lobbied for increases of $60 per month for Aid for Dependent Children (ADC) recipients and $30 for an individual on General Relief (GR). Currently the average family of three (3) on ADC receives $309 per month. The average monthly payment to General Relief (GR) is $118.

Even though under the Celeste administration there have been slight increases in cash benefits, at the same time, food stamps were decreased when benefits were increased. This amounted to about $1.00 in food stamps for every three dollars of benefits that are paid for increases.

At this rate, Ohio will never reach its own minimum standard of need. Ohio is paying about 50-55 percent of this minimum.

We have tried all of the traditional methods for getting the legislators to look beyond their balance sheets, and see the faces of children in need.

The time has come when the state must assume its responsibility of meeting the basic needs of its citizens and no longer ignore the poor.

Black college mission

The American Council on Education, the presidents of the 3,200 white colleges and universities, said that the decline in Black students on their campuses amounts to a "crisis."

As a result, these white leaders of higher education have announced a plan to put more Blacks on white campuses, to make life better for those already there and to graduate more than 3 out of every 10.

A combination of higher costs for education, a scarcity of scholarship money, a crumbling inner-city public school system and an increasingly hostile white population on and off college campuses has led to this so-called crisis.

A prime motivation for the new concern about Black-student welfare is the possible elimination of federal funding, such as defense contracts and grants.

Therefore, we might say the mission of white colleges and universities is to treat Blacks well when their own vested interests are threatened.

Black colleges, on the other hand, have a more compelling purpose. They take the poor, the downtrodden, the rejects of American society. They take the confused transfers from white colleges and universities, Black students broken and frustrated by a hostile environment, their high hopes turned into doubts.

The academic program at the Black colleges fills the gaps in education among the disadvantaged with unrivaled expertise developed out of necessity. For those who left the white campuses with shattered confidence, there is the sensitivity that restores the positive direction necessary for learning.

For both those lacking basic skills and those with dashed hopes, there is an experience that carefully provides the academic and social successes that build a self-image that restores confidence. That is the mission of today's magnificent 114 Black colleges and universities.

Separatism never has been and is not the major driving force of Black colleges. Historically, Black colleges have provided the best and most efficient climate for finishing school. To African-Americans, education has been the key to better jobs and financial security. Black colleges were established to meet this need.

Loyalty to them, therefore, is the result of their service -- not a campaign of racial exclusion. For example, the faculties at Black colleges are much more integrated than the faculties at White colleges and universities.

Whether one wants an integrated educational environment or not, the results of Dr. Jacqueline Fleming's study, Blacks in College (Jossey-Bass), are inescapable: Black students in Black colleges show more positive intellectual development than Black students in white colleges. And 7 out of 10 students on these 114 Black campuses graduate.

Perilous state: MBE programs

CAPITAL COMMENTS/ GILBERT PRICE

"What it has also done is illuminated national debate over the merits of the federal setaside programs."

A nasty little scandal which threatens to undermine and oust U.S. Attorney General Edwin Meese could have another victim: the federal government's minority business setaside programs. But the defenders of those programs in Washington, primarily the Congressional Black Caucus, will not let the programs die, because of their clear benefit to thousands of Black businesses nationwide.

Meese is under investigation by his own Justice Department because of his alleged role in steering a $32 million defense contract to a firm, Wedtech Corporation, in which his personal financial adviser had an interest.

The Wedtech scandal has already generated the indictment of a Congressman, Mario Biaggi of New York; several other political figures, and the investigation of former White House aide Lyn Nofziger for their role in steering business to the troubled New York firm.

What it has also done is illuminated national debate over the merits of the federal setaside programs. Wedtech, after all, was a hispanic-owned firm whose spectacular growth was keyed to its participation in the Small Business Administration's 8(a) program, which sets aside, without competitive bidding, contracts for minority businesses.

The Wedtech scandal highlights the problems endemic with setasides, according to their opponents: "front" companies (Wedtech remained certified only after some dubious restructuring permitted its minority owner to retain control); non-competitive bidding raising the price of goods; and political finagling replacing sound procurement policies.

In recent years, there have been efforts to chip away at setaside programs. When the Surface Transportation Act was reauthorized this year, the 10 percent setaside was effectively reduced by applying it to minority and female businesses. Previously disadvantaged (read: minority) and female businesses had separate setasides.

In addition, after some early victories in the courts on setasides (Ohio's law was upheld by the Sixth Circuit Court of Appeals in 1984), there have been some reversals. A Louisville setaside law was overturned by that same sixth circuit, and the Supreme Court forced a federal judge to review his decision upholding a setaside in Richmond.

The attacks are coming at a difficult time. On Capitol Hill, the godfather and primal force in behalf of setasides, Parren Mitchell, has resigned from Congress, and the Congressional Black Caucus is in some flux in replacing his sterling leadership. However, one thing is clear: the Caucus remains supportive of the federal setaside law "as it stands," according to Michael Bagley, an aide to Congressman Louis Stokes of Cleveland.

The forces opposed to the program have not relented nationally. The Associated General Contractors of America, which has fought every setaside since the first one passed by Mitchell in 1977, called the Wedtech scandal an example of the problems in the program.

Of course, Black Congressmen recognize that fraud and abuse is a problem in a number of federal programs, including defense; yet no one is calling on the elimination of the defense budget because some contractors happen to abuse the system. It is expected that their view will prevail.

But as long as Wedtech makes news in Washington, it will be no problem for Edwin Meese's credibility -- and the credibility of the Minority business program.

Opening eyes to a greater future vision

By MWATABU OKANTAH
Call and Post contributing writer

Harold Cruse's, The Crisis of the Negro Intellectual first appeared almost twenty years ago. At that time, we were not ready to hear him say the "Negro creative intelligensia cannot truly interpret the Negro's position in the United States beyond Civil Rights."

Recent events here involving Cleveland State University tend to strongly suggest that Cruse's analysis may be more critical today then when the book was published in 1967. Although he focused his attention on New York's Harlem, he stressed his contention that Harlem's predicament mirrored the larger predicament facing all of Afro-America.

Finding myself both a participant, as well as an observer, in the escalating three ring circus the CSU affair is becoming, I am disturbed by the way events are being [illegible]

History does not repeat itself. The ever-forward march of time can only pass us by. We are living in the 1980s. This is not the 1960s revisited. The rules of the game have not changed so much as they have evolved. We have to seriously guard against being reactionary. Each day, this fact of life becomes more apparent.

Too many of us seem to be content standing on the wrong side of our own history as a people here in the midst of white America. Too many of us are too arrogant in our ignorance to even care what the correct side of history might be. In very subtle ways, we have become victims of our own historical Civil Rights rhetoric. In our attitudes, too often we have become more American than the Americans.

So many people are now jumping on the "CSU is a racist institution" bandwagon, and with such zealousness that it has become embarrassing. We have not yet realized that to do certain things simply out of expediency can do more harm than good.

Watching some of the actors on this particular stage, one could be given the impression that the solution to our problems are only a fast-food-drive-thru window away. Inspite of my own closness to the situation, I am not quite sure if I know what's really going on.

For me, racism is not the issue so much as it is a given that must be dealt with. As this controversy unravels, it is becoming evident more is at issue than the welfare of African-American students, faculty, staff and workers here at CSU. A relative newcomer to the Cleveland racial scene, I don't know what to make of the curious assortment of "leaders" who are now exhibiting such a public interest in this university.

In the five years I have worked here, I am seeing some of these "concerned" Black community leaders up close for the first time. So many different agendas are being bandied about, it makes me wonder just whose interests are really being served at some of these press conferences.

In an earlier commentary (PD 4-10-87), I began my own attempt at placing this controversy, not only in historical, but in some kind of national perspective. More is at stake here than many people, students in particular, realize. This situation has implications for the African-American community that need to be talked about; pertinent issues that too many of our so-called leaders are conveniently ignoring.

It is alarming that, on the one hand, so much of our leadership has shown itself to be bankrupt, while, on the other hand, today's African-American students seem oblivious to all around them.

Given the nature of the kind of work I have been engaged in here at CSU over the past five years, my perspective on what is happening is rather unique. Racism exists at CSU. It exists in Cleveland. Cleveland is in America. The real issue is what do we do about racism?

When the protesting stops. When the TV cameras and the radio microphones are tuned into something else. When the commissions have spoken, what will we do then? Watching the ministers, I wonder if this means we can now expect their support for this year's Black Youth Conference? I wonder if this means I can look forward to meeting their flocks at this year's Black Aspirations Week or next year's Black History Month?

I wonder if this means certain leaders and Black organizations will now take our invitations and our programs more seriously? These issues concern me. I am not surprised when the white power structure ignores us, but, I am disturbed and angered when so-called Black leadership doesn't take us seriously until it is convenient for them.

My years in Cleveland have taught me at least two things. First, white people, generally, are unwilling to accept their historical, not to mention their moral responsibility for eliminating racism. Secondly, Cruse is accurate when he writes, "Harlem exists for the benefit of others and has no cultural, political or economic autonomy. Hence, no social movement of a protest nature in Harlem can be successful...unless it is at one and the same time a political, economic and cultural movement...It must be a combined movement..."

To date, this present skirmish does not indicate a real movement. Culture is not yet an issue; which is to say, the Afro-American Cultural Center and its programming has been overlooked in all of this.

For me, the actions and posturing of both the CSU administration and the so-called Black leadership has been woefully predictable. However, it is the predictability of Black leadership that worries me.

The conditions are ripe to make this campus a new precedent. The programs are already in place to make this a model institution. Hopefully, the CSU administration will take their heads out of the sand, and, Black leadership will open their eyes to a new and more inclusive vision of a future for us all.

To Be Equal

AIDS Hits Blacks hardest

By JOHN E. JACOB
Call and Post contributing columnist

AIDS is a killer disease that has spread to virtually all groups in our society. The Surgeon General reports that some 270,000 AIDS cases will be reported by 1991--and more than half of those will have died. And despite concentrated research into anti-AIDS drugs, no cure is in sight.

So AIDS is a major national public health problem. A nation that preferred to ignore it when it was largely confined to homosexuals and drug users, is now reluctantly facing the ugly fact that the AIDS epidemic is a national threat.

The Black community has been as indifferent to the spread of AIDS as any other group. But that is now changing because statistics show that Blacks are at higher risk.

A fourth of all AIDS victims are Black, about double the Black proportion of the general population. Half of all women with AIDS are Black women.

And Black victims of AIDS are likely to be sicker and die sooner--in New York, Black AIDS victims die at a rate double their share of the AIDS population. Part of the reason is that Blacks are more vulnerable to suffer poor health and have less access to health care. Many too, deny the problem exists until it is too late. The stigma attached to such at-risk groups as homosexuals and drug abusers, makes victims reluctant to disclose their disease and seek help.

The enormous danger AIDS represents to all people means that all communities have to be mobilized to fight it.

Education is the first line of defense.

The conservation Surgeon General of the United States, Everett Koop, has strongly backed sex education in the schools, beginning in elementary school.

Even the President has publicly acknowledged the disease, and indicted his support for sex education in the schools.

Dr. Koop has come under heavy attack for his stand, but today's young people become sexually active at an early age and need competent, responsible instruction in the implications of such activity. That includes the dangers of premature pregnancy, as well as the risks of contracting a disease such as AIDS.

The need for such broad public education is behind the acceptance of condom advertising on television. Now, if the media would also stop glamorizing sex and promiscuity, the home screen might become less of a medium for transmitting false values.

The important point is that a disease like AIDS can sweep through communities with devastating speed unless broad-scale preventive measures are taken.

The media are already engrossed in stories about the "new morality" of monogomous relations, absention, spreading use of condoms, and other ways in which fear of AIDS has modified behavior.

But along with sensible changes in people's behavior, there's also a new and dangerous trend that could make civil liberties another victim of the disease.

Calls for mandatory testing, for example, are ill-advised at this point. Not only are the nation's testing labs and procedures not worthy of trust, but the violation of civil liberties is too serious to tolerate.

It would be tragic if AIDS became an excuse for violating privacy rights, and for witch-hunting exercises along the lines of the McCarthyism of the past.

Jacobs is the President of the National Urban League.

A Trojan Horse

MINORITY VIEW/WALTER E. WILLIAMS

"The road by which Hitler rose to power was paved long before he dreamed it possible."

Since the end of World War II, Americans have been exposed to numerous accounts of Nazi brutality, one of the latest being CBS' showing of "Escape from Solobir." Nazi atrocities are a matter of record, but have we learned the real message of our Hitler experience.

From what I see, that experience is trivialized by our thinking of Adolf Hitler merely as a crazed power-hungry racist who happened to achieve power through some fluke resulting from a character defect of the German people.

To the contrary, Hitler's rise to power was helped by good people with decent intentions. They built the Trojan Horse that allowed Hitler to conquer Germany. German history is rich with evidence of respect for human rights. Germany produced men such as Goethe and Humboldt who inspired such Anglo-Saxon philosophers as John Stuart Mill.

The Germans, who settled in America had a reputation for getting along well with the Indians. These early settlers became the first abolitionists and assisted runaway slaves. During World War II, many Germans risked their lives hiding Jews and helping them escape from Hitler's henchmen.

The road by which Hitler rose to power was paved long before he dreamed it possible. In the late 1800s, Otto von Bismarck rejected British liberalism and called for an end to the semi-independent German states. State governments jealously guarded their power and Bismarck and the Weimar Republic had only limited success at centralization. They achieved success in other areas though, such as regulation of the economy.

When Hitler came to power, his first act was to consolidate government control. In March 1933, he issued a decree dissolving all state, county and local governments. Like other power-hungry tyrants who preceded him, Hitler saw a republican form of government as a threat to central authority.

This is part of the lesson to be learned from the terror of Hitler's National Socialist Worker's (Nazi) Party. The natural enemy of freedom, throughout history, has been highly centralized government power.

If the climate ever brought a tyrant to the White House, he would have powers for evil by Hitler. First, he'd have the Internal Revenue Service with its awesome -- and growing -- information network. With such an agency, Hitler would have been much more successful in his extermination attempts.

Through the U.S. Treasury's Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms, and its sister authorities at the state level, a U.S. tyrant would know which citizens own guns. He would not have to bear the political expense to dissolve state and local governments. Our government has captured so much power that to call ourselves a republic anymore has little meaning.

In large measure we have demeaned the lives lost as a result of the atrocities of the Third Reich. Americans, in the name of good, have created the conditions that make it easier for a tyrant to seize control.

Put yourself in the place of a dictator; what would you like to have in "place" before you came to power? You will see that the centralized authority on your wish list is already in place. When we say "Never again," it should mean we will never again create conditions that facilitate tyranny.

Another way in which we demean the holocaust is through our silence regarding brutality in Cambodia. Here a million or more people have been exterminated, assisted by Jane Fonda's "peace-loving" people of North Vietnam. Ditto our silence regarding Ethiopia, Afghanistan, Uganda, and other places around the globe. "Never again" has a hollow ring as the world sits and watches atrocities go on before our eyes.

For those of us who find comfort in saying it can never happen here, heed this warning: America, too, has crazed, power-hungry racists. Why help them build a Trojan Horse?

ick across the street from the restaurant, then went to look for a parking place.

After he turned around and drove back down the street, he saw the recruit signaling him and pointing to a parking space. A police officer driving behind Boykin assumed the woman was soliciting Boykin for prostitution.

The woman was put into the cruiser for questioning, and Sergeant Boykin got into the cruiser to explain the situation. A back-up was called for, and Boykin was ordered out of the cruiser, where he was maced and brutally beaten.

At that point, none of the officers had bothered to look at Boykin's I.D.

When the officers realized their mistake, according to the sergeant's attorney, they attempted to cover the incident up by arresting Boykin.

The potential female recruit was charged with jaywalking in keeping with the cover-up, Gaines argued.

In his lawsuit, Boykin charges that he was arrested under false pretences and held illegally for 12 hours before he was released. No court date has been set for a hearing on the matter.

Medical insurance does not cover transplants, although welfare may cover a portion of the expenses.

Even if Blair raises enough money to have the operation, her plight will not end. The new heart will prolong her life but will not cure her disease. According to doctors at Pittsburg's Presbyterian Hospital, the success rate of the surgery is 50 percent; 10 percent of those don't survive the recovery period.

Ultimate success would mean that Blair would extend her life expectancy from five to eight years and would have to travel to Pittsburg for monitoring for the rest of her life.

"I have the will power, I'll take the chance," says Blair, "being with my children five to eight years longer would mean a lot to me." Blair currently lives with her mother and her two children LeMont, 15, and Robin, 9. Blair and her children's sole support are payments from Social Security Disability.

Despite her dibilitating illness, which leaves her bed ridden, and supported by oxygen 24 hours a day, Blair has continued to fight for help. her pleas moved two Cleveland Businessmen, George Cromwell and Charles Pugh, to help her.

The men opened their 2,500 seat night club for a beneft to be held this Saturday. Hopefully, the Plush Entertainment Center on the outskirts of Cleveland, will be filled to capacity at $10.00 per person to aid Ms. Blair.

A star-studded entertainment program was hired or solicited to make the evening a real entertainment value.

Blair has kept a journal during her illness and hopes that publication will help others deal with problems similar to hers. "People just don't realize how hard it is to raise money."

Blair said she continuously trys to keep up her faith and hopes someone who has the money will help.

Donation to help Blair can be made to the Blair Heary Lung Transplant Fund, Donna M. Blair, Society National Bank, 20313 Van Aken Blvd., Shaker Heights, OH. 44122.

Thus, such services as emergency, laboratory, X-ray, diagnostic and treatment facilities are near at hand when needed.

Since 1980, Nannette Sanders Reynolds has organized a fundraiser for the Isabelle Nursing Center to purchase items that would help to make the lives of the residents a bit easier. She has purchased for the Center an organ, a piano, patio furniture and upgrading of the PA system. She is now raising funds to purchase the van and hopefully with the aid of the entire community, it will be a reality after this year's fundraiser/concert.

Volunteering their services to aid in this fundraiser will be the jazz trio of Hank Marr, the incomparable Jeannette Williams, jazz tap dancer Richard Manigoe, comedians Everett Sanders and Ken Walker, the AAUW Chorale under the direction of Carol Marty and Nannette Reynolds singing to the dance interpretations of Maria Hilbring.

The community may assist in this fundraiser by mailing contributions directly to the Ridgway Center at 1520 Hawthorne Avenue, Columbus, Ohio, 43203 to the attention of "Reaching out for Ridgway." Tickets for the concert at $5.00 each may be purchased from the home or at Battelle Auditorium after 4:30 P.M. on May 24th.

HUMPTY DUMPTY HAD A GREAT FALL? Maria Southall, 5, jubilently bounces off the walls of the Humpty Dumpty games designed for youngsters at the 1987 New Day in Hough Celebration, held recently in Cleveland. The event has become an annual event for the city's eastside community, which was once the scene of riots during the early 1960s. According to Fannie Lewis, D-7, Councilwoman for the district, the festivals and celebrations signify a new beginning for the area and emphasizes the fact that the Hough area has become the "role model for the revitalization of the city of Cleveland." Creativity

As children, we are naturally creative. Our minds run free, unconstrained by rules and logic. As adults, however, our thinking narrows, becoming bound by practicality, among other "mental locks."

To unlock our crativity, the Reader's Digest share some rules of thought to avoid:

- Find the right answer. Despite our teachings in school, there is not just one answer to every problem. Just looking for a second solution can produce some remarkable ideas.
- That's not logical. Hard, logical thinking has killed many strokes of genius. Softer thinking permits the finding of similarities and connections among defferent things or situations.
- Follow the rules. You often have to break a few rules to get an idea. Experimenting can lead to great success.
- Be practical. Look for the possible, not the practical. A whole new dimension can open up to you simply by asking the question "What if...?"
- Don't be foolish. Being foolish is a form of play, which is the father of invention. Let yourself go. Humor can show us the ambiguity of situations and suggest other answers.
- Don't make mistakes. Success and failure are stepping stones to the creative process. Thomas J. Watson, founder of IBM, once said, "The way to succeed is to double your failure rate."
- I'm not creative. Self-esteem is esential for crativity. If you think change only comes through Edisons or Einsteins, you sell yourself short.

FAA recruiting 3,000

The FAA intends to hire 3,000 Air Traffic Controllers to fill Tower, En Route Center, and Flight Service Station Positions throughout the United States before Dec. 31, 1987, according to an FAA official.

The Federal Aviation Administration, now facing a critical shortage of skilled air traffic controllers in a time of increasing air traffic (up 12 percent in 1986), recently began a national advertising campaign to recruit qualified candidates for air traffic controller positions. Since the highly controversial October, 1981 strike, in which 11,500 controllers were fired, only 7,000 have been replaced.

Warning signals of arthritis; treatment programs available

The Northeastern Ohio Chapter of the Arthritis Foundation is offering information pamphlets about arthritis to the public during May as National Arthritis Month.

The Foundation's different pamphlets discuss a variety of topics. Some of the booklets available include "Basic Facts," "Taking Charge--Learning to Live with Arthritis," "Diet and Arthritis," "Help Your Doctor, Help Yourself," "Arthritis in Children," and "Coping with Stress."

In addition, pamphlets which describe different forms of arthritis in depth are available, including "Osteoarthritis," "Rheumatoid Arthritis," "Gout," "Scleroderma," and "Ankylosing Spondylitis." Other pamphlets answer questions about medications frequently prescribed for arthritis.

"May is Arthritis Month, and we are intensifying our efforts to educate the public about arthritis," says Lee C. Howley, president of the Arthritis Foundation's Northwestern Ohio Chapter. "We want people to be aware of the warning signs of arthritis ignore them for several years before seeking a doctor's advice, reports the Arthritis Foundation.

early warning signs of this serious, sometimes crippling, condition. One million Americans will get arthritis this year. Five hundred thousand people here in Northeastern Ohio already have it."

In addition, there are many other medications available for the treatment of arthritis, and each person's doctor should decide the most appropriate treatment for his or her individual.

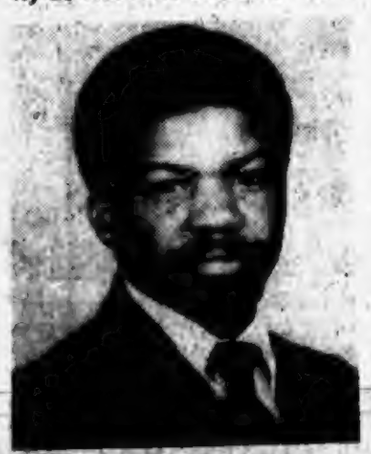
Rappin' Rev's record distributed worldwide

The Rappin' Reverend, known in the gospel community as Rev. Dr. C. Dexter Wise III, pastor of Shiloh Baptist Church, has signed an agreement with Fantasy Records of Berkeley, CA to distribute his rap album worldwide.



REV. DR. C. DEXTER WISE
...rap album

His album "I Ain't Into That" has been distributed nationwide with negotiations underway to release the record in the United Kingdom.

Wise says he was inspired by Rev. Jesse Jackson to record the album, a non-traditional approach to his ministry because "I have seen too many of our children pregnant, too many high schoolers who are high, too many kids who are career criminals, and far too many masses of youths who are jobless, joyless, loveless and hopeless," he said.

CRIME SOLVERS

Suspect still sought in Eastside slaying

Columbus police have no new leads in the Feb. 3 slaying of an eastside Columbus man. The homicide has again been designated Crime of the Week in the Crime Solvers Anonymous Program.

The body of Ronald Gene Dodley, 38, was found near an alley at the rear of 1231 E. Mound St. at approximately 7:45 a.m. Dodley, who had last been seen leaving a nearby Main Street tavern at 1 a.m., had been beated to death with a blunt instrument and was stripped from the waist down. Police theorize robbery as a possible motive in the slaying.

Crime Solvers Anonymous is offering a reward of up to $1000, with a deadline of May 28, for any information leading to an arrest and indictment in the Dodley slaying. Information received after May 28 could qualify the caller for a lesser reward.

Crime Solvers Anonymous also takes calls from persons with information about any felony. Information leading to the arrest and indictment of a felony suspect could qualify the caller for a reward as determined by the Crime Solvers Anonymous Reward Committee.

A special coding system protects the identity of the caller but allows him to be contacted at a later time.

Reward funds come from private donations to Crime Solvers Anonymous, Inc., a nonprofit organization sponsored by the Columbus Divisions of Police and Fire, Columbus CALL & POST, Columbus (Downtown) Kiwanis, Channel 6 WTVN-TV and 610 WTVN Radio, Columbus Messenger, and Suburban News Publications. Donations are tax deductible and can be sent to Crime Solvers Anonymous, P.O. Box 1225, Columbus, Ohio 43216.

The Rev. Samuel Proctor says the "Everybody in the country is jealous of Columbus. Not only for its strong support for the United Negro College Fund (UNCF), but also for the support the community gives other good causes."

Proctor was the keynote speaker of the 43rd Campaign Kickoff Luncheon for UNCF. He is the pastor of the Abyssinian Baptist Church in New York City and is the professor-emeritus of Rutger Graduate School.

Last year, Columbus' UNCF effort raised $....., which was the highest amount raised on a per capita basis in the nation.

During his address, Proctor noted that "Education has always had an agenda; they knew why they were in existence."

"Yale, Rutgers, and Dartmouth came into being to keep the gospel straight. They wanted to make sure that there were no illiterate clergy in the pulpit."

"Land grant colleges like Ohio State, Michigan State, and the University of Minnesota were determined to make America the most productive place in the land," he added.

"Technological schools were established to increase training in the sciences after the Russians launched Sputinik."

"UNCF," he said, "had its agenda thrusted upon them in 1865 when hundreds of Black institutions sprung up to educate the freed slaves across the south. Religious organizations wanted to prove that Blacks could learn.""

Since that time, the UNCF mission has unchanged, Proctor noted. Now it provides hope for members of the emerging underclass, who consist of persons who are on drugs, have no appreciation for Black heroes, and who are filling up the jails.

There is political indifference to the underclass making them victims of begnin neglect, since no one is pleading their case anymore.

UNCF is the best thing in the world for the underclass, Proctor concluded.

Advisory committee taps Marable as choice for OSU chairmanship

COLUMBUS--After more than two years of often-acrimonious debate about the future of the Department of Black Studies at the Ohio State University, a search committee has begun the task of establishing new leadership in the department, with the recommendation of a nationally-known educator and writer to head the department.

Dr. Manning Marable, a professor at Purdue University in Lafayette, Ind., was the unanimous choice of the Black Studies Advisory Board to chair the department. Marable also writes a weekly column, "Across the Color Line," which has also appeared in the CALL & POST.

The Black Studies Department at OSU has been under attack since 1984, when College of Humanities Dean G. Michael Riley attempted to oust then-chairman Dr. William E. Nelson from the post he had held since 1972. Nelson fought the ouster, and continued as chair until he decided to step down to accept a research professorship in 1986.

Mary Ann Williams, a professor in the Department of Black Studies, had been named the interim chair. She expressed no interest in assuming the chair full-time.

There had previously been deep division on the search committee, as supporters of Nelson had charged that, in earlier recommendations, individuals with the strongest Black studies background had not been adequately considered.

A release by the advisory board said that Marable had been recommended "based on the criteria of scholarship, research, service and leadership," noting not only his scholarly and journalistic efforts but his "community experience" and "stature as an international lecturer."

"Dr. Marable, a native Buckeye, posseses a portfolio of leadership, scholarship and academic legitimacy which could provide a strong vision for the Ohio State University Black Studies Department," the release concluded.

Marable was recommended from group of six candidates. The decision on the new chair will rest with OSU President Edward Jennings.

Reorganization plan opposed by Bill Moss

"It is becoming increasingly clear to me that as a result of this Board's and this administration's policies in recent years, the Columbus City School District will, in a few short years, be populated by a majority of Blacks and poor whites, a district surrounded by hostile white suburbs. Then, the policy toward this district will be one of containment rather than good, high quality education.

"Clearly, because the Columbus Schools have undergone so many major changes in recent years, we are looked upon as indeed we are, an unstable district. Therefore, more and more parents are choosing to leave the district or opting not to come into it in the first place. Meanwhile, many of the suburban districts are bursting at the seams because of increasing enrollment. Think about it. We have had desegregation, the reorganization of middle schools, changeover to the semester system, closing of elementary schools, closing of middle schools, and closing of high schools. Now, here we are on the verge of another major reorganization, four of the Board members who instigated the reorganization have either quit or have been defeated, and here at the worse possible time, the superintendent is leaving to take another position.

"I ask you, my fellow board members, to consider the suburban school districts. They have the stability of neighborhood schools, they have the stability of teacher and administrative staff remaining in the same assignment year in and year out. They have the stability of seeking to educate all their students, not just the ones who win a lottery. And they are not instituting new gimmicks every year, thereby throwing their district into confusion and chaos. While we are here running the deceptive game of alternative schools, the suburban school districts become the "real alternative"; the alternative to Columbus.

"Whoever the new superintendent is, once he or she is appointed that person will have to form a working relationship with his or her immediate administrative staff, employees in the buildings, union representatives, many and various community groups and the downtown power structure. The new superintendent will also have to establish a working relationship with the seven members of The School Board. I should certainly mention the fact that the entire board could change in this election year, as six of the members will be on the November ballot.

"Finally, let me say that no policy of the Board of Education should ever be deceptive or misleading. On the very day that the Federal Court released this system that it's jurisdiction, the president of this board made the following statement, and I quote. "As we agreed in our recent board retreat, this is both a legal and a moral obligation that we must uphold, and there are no plans for any changes." I regret to say that you already had plans underway to reorganize the district. So, in fact, you mislead the public.

"I say that with all things considered, and for the reasons already mentioned, we have a duty and an obligation to at least postpone the reorganization of the Columbus Public Schools, for to do otherwise would be irresponsible. After all, what's the big rush?"

Fed officials may probe COTA mall service slash

An official of the U.S. Department of Justice could be investigating the decision of a development company which operates several Columbus malls to refuse to permit buses to park on their grounds.

Columbus City Council member Ben Espy said that he has contacted the Community Services Division of the U.S. Department of Justice. The division mediates disputes between community groups and city and other officials. Espy is charging that the ban would have a serious impact on elderly and handicapped individuals.

The ban is in effect at Northland, Eastland and Westland malls. Jacobs-Visconsi-Jacobs, a Cleveland development company, owns the malls. The Jacobs brothers, owners of the company, are also the owners of the Cleveland Indians baseball team. The company charged that the buses were cracking the pavement when they banned COTA on May 4.

However, many people believe that the action was motivated by a desire to keep lower-income people, particularly Black youth, out of the malls.

At one time, when the buses were running to the malls, the Hamilton-Maize Rd. bus was heavily traveled by young people from the Linden area who were going to the Northland Mall. A COTA bus driver, Claude Curtis, had been fired after shooting a youth who he alleged was threatening him on the bus. Curtis was later reinstated as a mechanic.

Earlier, the Kingsdale mall had also kicked COTA off its property, also charging that the buses were destroying the paving.

COTA buses will be dropping passengers off on streets close to the malls. However, distances between the streets and the malls may be up a half-mile, posing a particular hardship for elderly and handicapped passengers.

According to City Council President Jerry Hammond, some of these elderly and handicapped passengers are filing claims with the Ohio Civil Rights Commission.

If the Community Relations Division of the Department of Justice comes into Columbus, it will probably be Patricia Glenn who represents the office. Glenn, who is responsible for monitoring the Columbus area, has previously been called into the city to help mediate disputes, including the Franklin County Board of Elections' decision not to hire a Black woman, Cathy Copeland, as its director, and the tensions which developed in 1980 surrounding the police shooting of a Black, Larry Minniefield. It was after this shooting that the city revised its policy on the use of deadly force.

Glenn was unavailable for comment at The CALL & POST edition time.

Jones proposes incinerator to burn hospital wastes

Ray Jones, candidate for Columbus City Council, today called on the mayor to end the debate regarding the disposal of infections waste generated by health care facilities by building its own generator.

The safe disposal of infections waste, such as used hypodermic needles, surgical wastes, and body tissues, has been the subject of hot debate recently in Columbus. Much of the debate has focused on the feasibility of modifying the city's trash-burning power plant so it could handle infectious waste. As a former hospital administrator who dealt on with infections waste disposal, Jones said it made more sense for the city to build its own infectious waste incinerator.

"There is only one sure, safe, and effective way to dispose of infectious waste, and that's to burn it," Jones said. "The city's trash-burning power plant was not designed to handle hospital wastes, and it doesn't make sense to spend the kind of taxpayer money modifying a plant which was never intended to dispose of these types of infectious materials."

Jones is proposing that Mayor Rinehart "investigate the type of incinerator needed to handle the infectious waste generated by Central Ohio hospitals, clinics, nursing homes, and physicians' offices."

Once the cost of constructing and operating an infectious waste incinerator is nailed down, Jones believes the city will discover that building its own incinerator would be cost-effective and welcomed by Central Ohio health care providers.

Most Central Ohio health care providers currently ship their infectious waste to private incinerators in Cincinnati or Dayton.

"My experience tells me that most central Ohio hospitals and health care providers would utilize a local incinerator. In fact, if operated properly, health care providers could save money and the city could make money," Jones emphasized.

Jones also suggested that the city explore the possibility of providing an infectious waste pick up service utilizing the city's current waste pick-up resources or by contracting the job out.

"Infectious waste must be handled carefully to ensure safety, but its disposal isn't an issue which the city should shy away from. By building an incinerator the size of an average garage and staffing it with a couple of trained employees, the city could have a money-making operation which provides a safe, convenient, much-needed service to Central Ohio health care facilities," Jones concluded.

PANORAMA

50 year members of Merry Makers have fond memories

PANORAMA

MARGARET ROBERTS

Dear Sredaer,

I haven't written to you in a week, so I thought that I'd drop you a few lines to tell you what's going on in Columbus. First, let me tell you that the weather can't decide what it wants to do, be pleasant or be muggy, and to add insult to injury, the air conditioner in my car is on the blink (groan).

Well, anyway, I was talking to our peppy and enthusiastic friend, Rosie McClure, yesterday and she's so excited about the September 13, 1987 Ebony Fashion Fair that her Twig 110 sponsors. Yesiree, Twig 110 is planning already. The Fashion Fair will be the same place it was last year, you know, the Ohio Theater that you like so much. So, how many tickets shall I tell Rosie to reserve for you?

Oh, before I forget, let me tell you that the club Affirmations that I wrote to you about a few letters ago is going to have a Spring Social on May 29 at the Galbreath Pavillion. I don't remember how much the tickets are, so you better ask one of the members about that. I do know that the affair starts at 6pm and should be really enjoyable what with them featuring a Black art exhibit with signature prints from-guess who?-Ernie Barnes. They'll have jazz music and dancing. I know that Billie Brown and those at the Neighborhood House are happy because the proceeds will go to their Computer Literacy Program. Pretty neat, huh?

Remember Ruth Brown, President of the Columbus Alumnae Chapter, Delta Sigma Theta Sorority and Rochelle Cos, an avid youthful Delta? Well, they, too, are anxiously awaiting a May date, May 23rd at 8pm to be exact. The Deltas are presenting their annual Jabberwock which will feature The Dayton Contemporary Dance Co. Sredaer, you should have been at the UNCF Kick-off Luncheon at the Hyatt Regency last week!! Liz Evans and Barbara Smoak, avid supporters, choreographed the line-up for the dais guests and the press conference for Dr. Samuel Proctor, the speaker, to a fair-thee-well! They were so calm and efficient. No need to tell you that Dr. Proctor was outstanding!

Can you imagine that over 700 people attended the luncheon and some had to be turned away earlier because the tickets had been sold out for a long time??!! The choir from Linden McKinley High School sang several musical selections a cappella including one of my two favorites, Precious Lord...good voices.

Before I get up from here and do my next chore, I just have to tell you, Sredaer, about a milestone of three Merry Makers. You know, the club of men who have set up an endowment program at the OSU where they financially assist athletes. As you know, they have a clubhouse on Spring Street. Well, the other night, I went there to be a part of the celebration for three of the members who have been in the club for 50 years. Can you imagine that? They are Wiley Bates, Earl Wilson, and James "Toots" Young. They each received their share of ribbing, a toast, and a beautiful plaque that spoke to their dedication to the club and to community service.

Mr. Bates is the walking historian of the club, and says that his fondest memory associated with the MM is when they obtained their first clubhouse. You see, Sredaer, when the club started, they met in member's homes. In 1954, they purchased the property on Spring Street, but the front door was really on Jefferson Avenue. They opened the MM clubhouse doors in 1955 and remained there until the present building was erected in July, 1966.

Sredaer, can you believe that Mr. Bates was the Treasurer for 30 years?,-yep, 30 years, and turned the first shovel of dirt at the groundbreaking for the new property. Do you remember the song, "Lonely Teardrops"? Well, one of the many fond memories of Earl Wilson concerning MM was when guests et al would do The Madison to that tune. The clubhouse used to have a record player that played 100 sides of old 33's, the kind that were small, and WHENEVER that record came on, EVERYONE, but EVERYONE, formed a big strong Madison Line!!

James Young, better known as Toots, really enjoyed what would I call the Christmas Bagging Process. Now, what this means is that the members would bag food all night long on Christmas Eve and on Christmas morning, they'd ride around and deliver them to families. I call it the "Process" because after the deliveries were made, they'd have a bit of Christmas cheer and rush home to be with their families ... ho, ho, ho.

Well, Sredaer, I have to go. I'm running out of paper. Please let me hear from you, and I'll write you and let you know about the couple who has been married the longest time past 40 years.

Affectionately,
Margaret

Hot Beauty Tips for summer

Q: I always feel too made up when I put makeup on. Are there any tips for me?*

A: It may be that you're not blending enough. Always start with a small amount of product and use brushes or sponges to blend shades together for a natural look.

A: You may be using too much mascara in the first application. Apply one "thin" coat at a time and allow each to dry before adding another.

Q: I have dark skin which often looks ashen when I apply foundation. Can anything stop this?*

A: The shade you're using may be too light. Be sure to test foundation shades along your jawline when you have no other makeup on.

Q: My lipstick color always changes. Should my lipstick and nail enamel shades always match?*

A: A lip toner applied under lipstick helps color stay true. No, your lip and nail enamel don't necessarily have to match. What's important is that they are from the same color family.

UN Decade for Women helps African women improve economic production

By HAZEL WILLIAMS
(SPECIAL To The CALL & POST)

Helping rurual women to improve their economic status was the major benefit of the United Nations Decade for Women in West Africa, according to Florence Abena Dolphyne, Visiting Fulbright Scholar at the University of California at Los Angeles. Professor Dolphyne was in Columbus last Friday to address a group at Ohio State University.

Dolphyne said that African women have always made a significant contribution to the economies of their respective countries, mainly in the area of farming. "In Western Africa, most of the food crop farming is in the hands of women, but this has been taken for granted," she said.

As an example she cited the 1960 census in Ghana wherein most, 70 percent, of the adult female population was listed as being housewives. "But anyone who has lived in West Africa knows that in fact, it would be difficult to find a housewife because every woman does something else. She's a farmer, a dressmaker, a trader, something," Dolphyne said.

Ghana and most of Africa is unlike the United States where a small percentage of the population, about three percent, produces food crops for the entire nation. In most of West Africa, about 70 percent of women live in rural areas where they are farmers and produce most of the food for family consumption. Men, traditionally, have been engaged in cultivating "cash" crops, or crops to be sold in international markets such as coffee, cocoa, and tea.

The three goals of the United Nations Decade for Women which lasted from 1975 to 1985 were equality, development and peace. Since most African women are involved in agriculture, most projects were centered around making women more productive in farming and food processing.

Rural women were organized into cooperatives or groups so that they could obtain larger plots of land from the village ruler and have greater access to capital. Dolphyne explained that formerly women did not approach banks for loans because they often did not own the land they farmed and as such had no collateral.

FLORENCE ABENA DOLPHYNE
...osu lecturer

However, as members of a cooperative, women had more land and as a result, greater credit worthiness. In addition, new technologies such as machinery to dry and grate vegetables were introduced.

Professor Dolphyne told the audience that women in Africa look at women's liberation from a different perspective than American women. "It (equality) had nothing to do with who cooked the dinner, washed the dishes, or changed the baby. It had everything to do with ensuring that women took full advantage of the facilities that were available in their countries for education, vocational and professional training so that they (women) could make a more useful contribution to national development", Dolphyne said.

She said that the real issues are related to the larger concern for equity in world trade. In other words, if producer countries received a fair pride for their goods in the world market, women would have greater income and would be able to provide better care for themselves and their children.

When asked to compare the status of urban women in America and West Africa, Dolphyne stated that West African professional women are in a better position than their American counterparts. She explained that marriage and childbearing do not inhibit a woman's professional growth. She attributed this to the fact that childcare is more readily available because of the extended family system and affordable wages for domestic workers.

"When a woman in Africa has formal education and professional training, she really is as liberated as a man, almost. Certainly the professional freedom that a woman has in Africa, the professional woman in America does not have," Dolphyne said.

Professor Dolphyne is a native of Ghana where she served as chairperson of the Department of Linguistics at the University of Ghana. Ghana is a nation of 13 million people on the west coast of Africa.

Poussaint to address critical issues

CLEVELAND--Dr. Alvin Poussaint, script consultant to The Cosby Show, is the featured speaker at the Cleveland Branch NAACP's Twenty-Eighth Annual Freedom Fund Dinner, Sunday, June 14, at Stouffer Tower City Plaza. The speaker is an author, psychiatrist, educator and respected social critic.

The Freedom Fund Dinner, also in celebration of the local NAACP's 75th Anniversary, includes a reception for Dr. Poussaint, 5-6 p.m., followed by the program. For information on ticket and table donations, call 231-6260.

William J. Williams, chairman and chief executive officer, Huntington National Bank, is helping with corporate participation in the Freedom Fund Dinner. Andrea Taylor, chairperson, is coordinating the involvement of the various other groups in the Cleveland Metropolitan Area.

University racism, such as alleged at Cleveland State, was one of the topics receiving Dr. Poussaint's insights in the book, "Like It Is," (E.P. Dutton, 1981), in which Arthur E. Thomas Interviews Leaders On Black America. Dr. Poussaint had this to say:

"They (black students) have to worry whether the administrators really want them there, or whether they are there only because of affirmative action. They also have to deal with psychological insults and assaults that have to do with the sometimes negative attitudes of professors and sometimes negative attitudes of white students."

Dr. Poussaint is an associate professor of Psychiatry and assistant dean for Student Affairs at Harvard University. He is also on the staff of Children's Hospital and the Judge Baker Guidance Center, both in Boston, Mass.

A best-selling author of Why Black Kill Blacks and Black Child Care (co-author), Dr. Poussaint's health care services have included: consultant to the federal Department of Health and Human Resources and congressional hearings; and Southern Field Director for the Medical Committee for Human Rights, Jackson, Miss.

He attended Columbia University, received his M.D. from Cornell University in 1960, and took postgraduate training at the UCLA Neuropsychiatric Institute.

A WINNER -- Scott Reeves, a senior at Eastmoor High School, displays the awards he received following his first place finish in the long jump, 300 meter low hurdles, on the 400 meter relay team and his second place finish in the 110 meter low hurdles at the 68th City League Track & Field Championships Friday, (May 15) at Ohio Stadium. Robinson leads Vikings to city title; Eastmoor boys keep championship reign

By LIZ COOK
(COLUMBUS BUREAU)

Northland's Terry Robinson helped track enthusiasts forget about the chilly winds that breezed through Ohio Stadium Friday, (May 15) during the 68th City League Track and Field Championships as she set three new city league records to help lead the Viking squad to its first league title.

Northland scored 121 points to runner-up and last year's champion Mifflin, which scored 90 points in the 15-school competition. The boys defending league champion Eastmoor soundly defeated its field of competitors scoring 95.5 points. Brookhaven maintained second place with 54.5.

Robinson won four of Northland's first-place events in the 100 and 300 meter hurdles, and in the 100 and 200 meter dashes.

She beat her own records set last year in the 200 dash and 300 low hurdles with a 25.7 and 44.6 timing respectively. Robinson ran a 12.1 in the 100 dash beating the 12.3 timing set in 1982 and tied in 1984.

The Viking's 3200 meter relay also set a new meet record with a 9:54.8 clocking.

Although visibly tired by the end of her last event, in the 200 meter dash, Robinson still clearly out-distanced her opponents.

Robinson said she was pleased with her effort and admitted she was slowly recovering from her evening's performance.

Senior Scott Reeves led his teammates to victory by making the best long jump effort this season in the state of 23' 9" during the preliminary field events.

"I was kind of surprised about that," Reeves said. "My next goal is to jump 24 feet."

His other first place rankings were in the 300 meter low hurdles and on the 400 meter relay team. Reeves registered a 39.0 timing in the 300 meter hurdle event which represented the first time the event had been entered in the city league meet.

Eastmoor's 400 meter relay squad beat their own best time set last year of (42.8) with a 42.3 performance.

Reeves was pretty confident coming into the meet. "I anticipated and hoped to get two or three first-place finishes," he said.

After losing the 110 meter high hurdle event, for which he was favored, Reeves said he became a little worried.

Reeves stated emphatically, however, "watch for me in the state meet."

Troy Lopes, of Centennial, also gave him an impressive showing within the boy's competition.

Lopes blistered his own record of 49.7 in the 400 meter dash with a 47.5 timing. He also set a meet record in the 200 meter dash running 21.8 to erase the old 2.1 record set by Eastmoor's Rodney Smith last year.

ANOTHER SHORT cut is this one which Kennedy said is a box cut, usually very short on the sides and quite high on top. This is a small scale version of the cut.

BACK VIEW of the tapered look! This style is a short natural wave which can easily be attained by brushing hair and wrapping in a scarf at night.

SHOWN IS a side view of chemically treated waves. Maurice Kennedy said that the trend of long hair in the back has passed. (Photos by Debbie Winters).

THIS IS a backview of the chemical waves. Kennedy said this style is very easy to maintain. Styles on this page were created by Kennedy.

THE TAPERED look is also popular, especially among the high school and college aged men. Notice the unique parts on the side.

Stylist-barber reveals popular summer hairstyles

Summer 1987 will bring new dimensions to mens' hair fashions, said Maurice Kennedy, barber-stylist who recently won the coveted "Total Look Hairstyling for Men" champion award in Atlanta, Georgia.

Kennedy, employed locally at Standing Ovations, is personal stylist for local and natioal figures plan his regular clientele.

The Atlanta competition, sponsored by Bronner Brothers Beauty Trade Show, netted him a four-feet trophy and $100.00.

According to Kennedy, this is the largest trade show for Black hair stylists and barbers in the country. He also coordinated the fashions for the competition.

Kennedy began his cosmetology career as a hobby. By the time he was 15 years old, he was known as the neighborhood barber.

His interest developed at age 14 as he watched his father cut he and his brothers' hair. Kennedy describes himself as a born hairdresser blessed with artistic ability and eye for detail.

He cut and styled friends' hair throughout high school and his stay in the United States Army.

Although hair cutting and styling are his first love, after the Army tour, he earned an Associate's Degree in Architecture and worked as an RTA mechanic before getting his barber's license. Since then he has worked conscienciously establishing a career and distinguishing himself as an artist.

He is a member of the international hairstyling team of Luster Products, sponsor of the S Curl manhunt. This year Kennedy served as a judge for the manhunt finalists and styled their hair. The winner, Michael Jenkins, is featured with this story.

Among the artists whose hair Kennedy has cut and styled are Enchantment, Chilites, LeVert, Evelyn Champagne King, Dennis Edwards, Roy Ayers, and several others.

Eventually, Kennedy and his wife, Marie, plan to open a beauty and barber salon to offer full service to both sexes. Mrs. Kennedy, also a cosmetologist, presently operates in Gibson, Louisiana and will move to Cleveland in June.

Featured with this story are the new hair fashions for men. Kennedy described four basic looks: the real short natural wave, chemical wave, box cut, and curls.

KENNEDY IS SHOWN as he prepared James Otis for the Telejam television show. Kennedy has worked with several local as well as national artists from professional sportsmen to entertainers.

He believes curls are the best thing to happen to Black hair because it stimulates growth.

He said curls are here to stay

Hundreds attend Eta Phi Beta Millionaire's Ball

The Ballroom of the North Randall Holiday Inn was filled to capacity with guests of Eta Phi Beta Sorority, Inc., Gamma Chapter for its annual Millionaire's Ball Benefit.

The game room resembled the casinos in Atlantic City and Las Vegas, and offered games of horse racing, craps, poker, chuck-a-luck, black jack, pokeno, and big six.

Upon arrival, each guest was given play money to be used in playing the games. Money won was used to purchase the many gifts on display. They were clock radios, stainless steel flatwear, mixing bowls, six-piece microwave oven ware, toaster oven, salad servers, glasses, pillows, popcorn popper, and a hand mixer, plus more. Prizes were donated by sorority members.

Guests not partaking of the games danced to music furnished by the Scientist of Sound with disc jockey James Webb.

Eta Phi Beta is a national business and professional women's sorority composed of 88 chapters throughout the United States and the Virgin Islands. It was organized in 1942 in Detroit, Michigan, by 11 business women who felt the need for a closer fellowship among business and professional women.

The sorority's major national and local project is aiding mentally retarded citizens. They also give scholarships to deserving high school graduates and contribute money and services to several worthwhile civic projects such as the National Council of Negro Women, United Negro College Fund, NAACP, YWCA, National Assault on Illiteracy and working on a second life membership of the NAACP.

Locally they provide gifts and sponsor parties for the residents of the centers for retarded citizens, and birthday and holiday parties are also sponsored for the elderly at Golden Age Centers.

Thanksgiving baskets are distributed to the needy each year and donations of food and money are made to the city's hunger centers.

In keeping with the motto "not for ourselves but for others", the proceeds from this affair will be used for local scholarships and provide benefits for the community's retarded citizens.

The Millionaire's Ball is planned each year by the Ways and Means Committee of the sorority.

Chairperson is Doris Foster; co-chairs are Willa Wade and Gloria Glover, executive officer is Willa Walker. Publicity chair is Anna Harris and Janie Howell is president of Eta Phi Beta Sorority, Inc.

Urban League's word processing class graduates

BY SHARON JEFFERSON
Call and Post staff reporter

CLEVELAND--The number 13 will always be considered a lucky digit for a group of students who recently graduated from the 13th Class of the Urban League of Greater Cleveland's Office Systems and Word Processing Training program.

The 21-week program provides training on personal computers and sessions on career development. Instructors also arrange internships for the students. "Their jobs won't be extinct in the next five years," Job Developer and Counselor, Karen Marshall explained.

Two of the students found employment prior to their graduation. Angela Lloyd will be employed as a secretary at the Federal Reserve Bank and Bonnie L. Finley will work as an office manager at a local law firm.

The participants were promised monetary rewards for completing the program. Students who finish the course will receive $25. A student can earn $50 if he completes the course and has perfect attendance. William Carter was selected the Outstanding Student of the class. He will receive $75.

The graduation ceremony was held in April at the Advent Lutheran Church, 15309 Harvard Ave. The keynote speaker was Karen Whitner of the Bulletin Newspaper in Twinsburg. "By successfully completing this program, you have proven you possess self-confidence and self-discipline," she said.

Sister Juanita Shealy also offered words of encouragement to the students, "Let this be one of the many milestones you reach in life." The students raised $113 and donated it to the Urban League.

Wilks leads Mount Union relay team to NCAA

ALLIANCE--Perhaps it is appropriate that Alan Wilks runs the leadoff leg on Mount Unron College's NCAA-qualifying 400 meter relay team. For, without question, Wilks is a leader of this perennial championship track and field program.

Wilks will be in his leadoff role when the four-man relay squad and four other team members are in Naperville, Ill., May 20-23 for the National Collegiate Athletic Association Division III Track and Field Championships.

The Cleveland Heights senior sparked the relay team to a first place finish in an NCAA-qualifying time of 42.1 seconds last Saturday at the Ohio Athletic Conference Championships. The win helped Mount to its fifth consecutive OAC outdoor title.

In typical Wilks fashion, he credited his teammates for enabling the relay team to qualify.

"No, at first I don't think we made it (to NCAA) because of some stick (passing the baton) problems," Wilks noted. "My stick pass to Mike Detling was early in the exchange zone and he couldn't build up speed.

"But, Troy Taylor (who followed Detling) made up for it on the curve and if Joe Knoll (the anchorman) is within two or three yards down the stretch he'll win."

"When you get the stick in our hands, no one in the OAC will beat us."

And, Wilks' reaction when he learned the team did make it?

"I just jumped for joy," he said. "I had one more chance at the NCAAs and another chance to be an All-America."

Wilks has plenty of experience at seeing his name adorn an All-America certificate. In 1984, he was on the 400 meter relay team that won the national championship and in 1985 he was on the team that finished in third place.

Perhaps of equal importance to the program is the leadership that Wilks brings. He learned plenty from Mount Union champions in his early years and now he's given much back to a relatively young program as a senior.

"When I came to Mount Union," Wilks recalled, "we had two of the nation's top sprinters in Rick Hairston and (six-time national champion) Derrick Rippy. We called Hairston 'Pops' and he was a real inspiration to me. I felt responsibility when those guys left, and after being elected captain this year, I felt I could give something back.

"One of the younger guys recently said to me, 'Thanks, we needed your leadership.' It's a great feeling to encourage others and that's related to my major -- social service."

"I just want others to say, 'Well, that Alan Wilks is a real nice guy."

Wilks' jump for joy at making it to the nationals made up for much pain and frustration over the last year. After making it to the NCAA as a freshman and sophomore, he didn't make it last year mainly because of a leg injury.

"When Rippy and Hairston were here, it was a guaranteed thing that we would go to the nationals," Wilks stated.

"Then, it was a question of 'can we do it without them'?"

"At last year's OAC Championships, we were disqualified when I was out of the exchange zone for a handoff. And, at Baldwin-Wallace's Last Chance meet (last chance to qualify for the NCAA), my leg was hurting so much that I ran only on the day of the meet. Well, I ran twice that day and won the 500 meter race, but the leg just couldn't give 100 percent in the relay."
